REPORT OF THE SUPERVISOR OF SCHOOLS.

We herewith give you our first annual report of the condition of our schools. We have reported each school separately, making the report as brief as possible where there is unavoidably so much repetition. We have also given a brief financial statement.

DISTRICT No. 2.

The Summer Term was taught by Laura E. Fall of this town. Miss Fall is young, and this was her first school, and perhaps she labored under some difficulties in teaching in her own district. We think she did well, and that the school was profitable.

The winter school was taught by M. B. Hammond of this town. Mr. Hammond is a teacher of some experience, and thoroughly understands his business in the school room. When we visited the school there was a good degree of interest, and the prospect of a prosperous term of school. On account of sickness he was obliged to close the school sooner than expected, and we did not visit it but once.

DISTRICT No. 3.

The Summer Term was taught by Edith E. Crosby of Manchester, N. H., and we think was a profitable school.

The Winter Term was under the instruction of W. A. Lancaster of Benton. Mr. Lancaster is a young teacher, and had taught but one school before this, but seems to be well adapted to teaching. He is well qualified, and has the faculty of imparting knowledge to his pupils and make them interested in their studies. We cannot speak of progress made by the scholars, as we were not notified as to time of the school closing, consequently did not visit the school but once.
DISTRICT No. 4.

The Summer and Winter terms were both taught by Ida M. Holmes of Freedom. We were much pleased with the manner in which Miss Holmes conducted her school, and the results thereof. We think the citizens of the district can but be gratified with their schools for the past year.

DISTRICT No. 5.

The Summer Term was taught by Julia F. Worthing of Palermo. On my first visit there seemed to be a good degree of interest among the scholars in regard to their several studies, but there was a lack of thoroughness. We found at the close of the school a commendable improvement, but much more might have been accomplished by a thorough, systematic drill in the several studies pursued.

The Winter Term was taught by W. M. Wyman of Freedom, and we do not think it was a profitable school as a whole. The order was good, but there was a great lack of thoroughness in many respects; scholars were allowed to pass over their recitations in a careless, slipshod manner, miscalled and mispronounced words were not corrected; which was very detrimental to the interests of the school.

DISTRICT No. 6.

The Summer Term was taught by May M. French of this town. This was Miss French's first attempt in teaching, and with experience she might become a very successful teacher.

The winter school was taught by Sadie F. Shorey of this town; and she fully sustained her reputation of the summer, as one of our best teachers.

DISTRICT No. 8.

There were three terms of school in this district the past year, summer, fall and winter. The school is divided, making two good sized schools. The schools were under the charge of C. W. Abbott of East Rumford during the year, with such assistants as the wants of the school required. Mr. Abbott is a teacher of considerable experience, and is well calculated for a teacher of youth, and we think one of the best of instructors.
The assistants for the year were Olive A. Gould of this town, in the summer and winter terms, and Rose A. Abbott of East Rumford in the fall term. They are both teachers of experience, and gave universal satisfaction in that capacity, and we cheerfully recommend them to those who wish to obtain the services of good teachers.

DISTRICT No. 9.

The Summer Term was taught by Sadie F. Shorey of this town. Miss Shorey is a young, but very successful teacher. Her thorough, systematic training and drilling, to which her pupils are subjected, cannot fail to accomplish the desired result of rapid and thorough improvement in their studies. We hope her services as teacher may be retained in our schools.

The Winter Term was taught by Gertrude Drake of this town. Miss Drake is a young teacher, this being her second school. The same system of thoroughness that pervaded the summer school was manifest in the winter term, and a marked improvement was made by the scholars of No. 9 the past winter; and on the whole was a very profitable school.

DISTRICT No. 10.

The summer school was in charge of Sadie E. Gould of this town, and was not up to our standard of what a school should be. There was a great lack of order in the school, that was very detrimental to its interests; for a school of its size, we think one very hard to govern. We are confident that a little more energy on the part of the teacher would have worked a very desirable change and made the school a success.

The Winter Term was in charge of Oraville C. Glidden of Palermo, and we think was a very profitable term of school.

DISTRICT No. 11.

Emma F. Webb of this town had charge of the summer school, and gave universal satisfaction as a teacher. Although the school was small, Miss Webb was successful in keeping up a degree of interest seldom witnessed in a school of this size. Miss Webb is well qualified to teach in any of our common schools, and we think our agents will find it for the interest of their schools to secure her services as teacher.
The winter school was taught by Carrie A. Cates of Vassalboro, and we think will rank on an average with the schools throughout the town for the winter.

DISTRICT No. 12.

The summer school was taught by Annie J. Chase of this town, and the school was a success. This was Miss Chase’s first attempt in teaching, and she showed a proficiency as instructor rarely seen in one so young, and with experience will become one of our best teachers.

The Winter Term was taught by Frank Rackliff of this town. This was Mr. Rackliff’s second school, and we think it a profitable one. He has labored under some difficulties, on account of sickness of scholars, making the attendance very irregular, but we think a good degree of interest was maintained throughout the term.

DISTRICT No. 13.

The Summer Term was taught by Gertrude Drake of this town. This was Miss Drake’s first school, and we think was a profitable one. With experience she will make one of our best teachers.

The winter school was in charge of Emma F. Webb of this town, and ranked among our very best schools.

DISTRICT No. 14.

The summer and winter schools were both taught by Lellie V. Dilling of this town. Miss Dilling is a teacher of experience, and enters into her work with a spirit that is sure to make her schools successful and profitable.

In conclusion, we would say our schools during the past year have been very successful; in no case have we been called to settle any difficulty. A deep interest in the welfare of our schools seems to have been taken by all. Good agents have invariably been chosen by the districts, and those agents have endeavored to do their duty to its full extent. A majority of our schools have been taught by teachers belonging in town, and although some of them were inexperienced, they taught us schools that we may well be proud of. We would say to school agents, patronize home industry, and if we have good teachers in town make it a point to employ them.

The average attendance in some of our schools seems much below what it need be, and much time and money are thrown away by scholars being tardy and absent. We think parents, if they are inclined to, can do much to correct this evil.

There has been no improvement of any importance in our school houses the past year. Although we have some good school-houses, and others that are very comfortable, but far from being in the condition we should like to see them, there are others that are in a dilapidated condition and in no wise suitable for a school-room, and we hope neat, commodious houses may soon replace them.

We believe much of the success of our schools depends on the parents. If parents would visit the schools once or twice each term, and speak an encouraging word to the teacher and to the children, let them understand that they felt a lively interest in their improvement, and be very particular never to censure the teacher in the hearing of the children, and not to listen to idle reports, but if they suspected anything wrong go to the teacher, and in a proper spirit investigate the matter, in nine cases out of ten everything would be pleasantly adjusted.
