

HOW TO BUILD RESILIENCE IN A TIME OF POLYCRISIS

Pedagogical Practices for Teaching Sustainability

Tuesday, March 24

4:30–6:00 p.m.

In person at Fogler Library, The Salon
and on-line via Zoom

Teaching Sustainability in a Changing World

As ecological overshoot and climate disruption reshape our world, how can we help students build resilience?

Join this interactive 90-minute Salon to share ideas, spark collaboration, and design regenerative, community-connected teaching practices aligned with Maine's climate goals.

Facilitators: Joline Blais, Dan Dixon, Elizabeth Payne

You will:

- Exchange resilience-focused teaching strategies
- Connect with campus and community partners
- Explore practical ways to integrate adaptation and regenerative practices into your courses

Open to faculty, staff, students, and community members. All disciplines welcome.
